iMDsoft Wins Frost & Sullivan Award for Healthcare Innovation

Boston, MA – November 25, 2008 – iMDsoft, a leading provider of Clinical Information Systems, has been named the recipient of the Frost & Sullivan 2008 North American Healthcare Innovation Award for its MetaVision application for critical care.

The award recognizes iMDsoft for its success in developing products that stand alone as a unique solution for acute care. The selection of iMDsoft for the award was based on interviews and primary market analysis conducted by Frost & Sullivan’s industry analyst team, on the basis of which iMDsoft received the number one ranking in its field.

Frost & Sullivan’s analysts noted that MetaVision is a single-platform solution that integrates especially well with other hospital information systems and across the critical care continuum. iMDsoft has effectively overcome the challenges associated with using clinical information systems in the acute care arena.

“iMDsoft has a long track record of continuous innovation and we are pleased that Frost & Sullivan has recognized that with this award” said Phyllis Gotlib, CEO and co-founder of iMDsoft. “We will continue to focus on developing and enhancing our leadership position and to realizing our vision of clinical information systems that have a real impact on quality of care and financial performance within hospitals.”
